

Email to VuFind Early Adopters List from Paige Weston, CARLI Office, May 13, 2008

Hi, VuFind Early Adopters,

Those of you experimenting with VuFind this afternoon will notice some cosmetic changes. It should now be a little easier to tell when you're searching just your own library, and when you're searching all I-Share libraries. Check it out: <http://xxxxxxx> or <http://xxxxxxx-xxx> (where xxx is your library's three-letter code).

The web-based form with which you'll be able to request color customization of VuFind for your local catalog is almost done. We still hope to be able to make it available to you tomorrow, as I announced last week.

Work continues on the display of holdings data, on format identification, and on 856 field hyperlinks.

Remember: please send problem reports to support@carli.illinois.edu . Discussion questions can go to vf-early@carli.illinois.edu . (It's probably better not to copy support on a note to the discussion list because any replies that reply-to-all will spawn a bunch of new incidents in our problem-tracking system. Thanks.)

I hope your spring semesters are winding down nicely, freeing you up to think more about experimental OPACs!
