Sharing the History of Central Illinois: Depicting the Lifestyle and Culture of Early Bloomington Normal and Mclean County

Collection Description

This collection depicts a cross section of the historical architecture, lifestyle, and residences from the prominent Central Illinois community of Bloomington-Normal. It also has a significant focus on McLean County—Illinois' largest county. The digitized pages of this collection will allow access to the history of public buildings, residences, churches, parks and scenes of an early Bloomington-Normal and Central Illinois.

Fitting the theme “Illinois Culture and Heritage”

The present state of Bloomington-Normal and McLean County is rooted in the historical developments of its culture and heritage. This collection provides wider access to illustrated texts that provide a glimpse into the architectural, recreational, and lifestyle developments of Central Illinois.
