Traffic sources summary

This report primarily discusses website traffic from sources that are external in nature, excluding resource pages from CARLI member institutions. Web resources such as Facebook, Flickr, and Twitter are also excluded as these mainly contain internal promotional initiatives. Statistics do not include visitors who access the collections directly or through search engines.

1. CARLI Collection home pages that received traffic from multiple sources:

- Chicago Genealogist (Newberry Library)
  Traffic from several genealogical sites: The Cook County page of the USGenWeb project, another online guide to resources, Johnson County Genealogical Society and Library, Inc., and the Chicago Genealogical Society.

- Century of Progress World's Fair, 1933-1934 (University of Illinois at Chicago)
  This received traffic from Wikipedia and a personal website called City Clicker.

2. Traffic sources that lead to home pages or images from multiple CARLI Collections:

- Wikipedia
  Wikipedia articles linked to the following CARLI collections: Century of Progress World's Fair, 1933-1934, Railroads in the Midwest: Early Documents and Images (Knox College), Louis H. Sullivan Ornaments (Southern Illinois University Edwardsville), and SCRC General (Southern Illinois University Carbondale).

- Cinema Treasures (movie theater guide)
  Referred to images of movie theaters from two different collections: C. William Brubaker Collection (University of Illinois at Chicago), and Peoria Historical Society Image Collection (Bradley University).

3. Other interesting connections and patterns:

- The most popular item this quarter was an image of Lake St. Bridge through Ogden Slip Bridge from Chicago - Photographic Images of Change, which was posted to Reddit.

- A website for buying and selling yearbooks called This Old Yearbook referred a visitor to the Illinois Weslayan Yearbook collection, and linked to several others.

- The Washington State Department of Archaeology and Historic Preservation linked to an image of an iron works logo from the University of Illinois-Springfield in an article about discovering the origins of cast iron storefronts in Washington State.
Conclusions: Much remained the same this quarters as in previous quarters, but the continued use of items in social knowledge seeking spaces such as Wikipedia and Reddit, as well as in more traditional genealogical sites are good indicators that making these items openly available is good for outreach.
