Taking the Census 2020

George Washington University's Institute of Public Policy found that at least $34 billion in federal funding for programs that directly assist Illinois residents is tied to census figures.

One missed resident translates to a loss of $1,800 a year.

Projected over the 10-year life of the census, that's $18,000 a person in reduced services.

(Northwest Herald, March 13, 2019)

Illinois lost an estimated 45,116 residents from 2017 to 2018. Since 2013, the state has lost more than 100,000 residents.
