

Directions for Part 1:

Each slip of paper has an MLA core element on it.

- 1) As a group, put the elements in correct MLA order.
- 2) Tape the elements to the backside of this paper, in the correct order. Use the MLA Handbook or any internet resources you look up on your own devices to help you.
- 3) Add the correct punctuation at the end of each element—HINT: every element needs either a comma or a period!
- 4) One slip has a passage from a fictional student paper that quotes this source. Leave that alone for now—you will get more directions later.
- 5) When everyone is done, each group will show their citation to the class. Be ready to identify the core elements and explain your work.

Homer

The Odyssey

Translated by Stanley Lombardo

The Norton Anthology of World Literature: Vol. A edited by Martin Puchner, et al.

W. W. Norton & Company

2012

pp. 332-622

Here is a passage from a fictional student paper. Identify what information you need, and write out the in-text citation. This quote comes from p. 566 of the Norton book, lines 651-652.

Penelope says “For every thing there is a season, and a time / For all we do on the life-giving earth” ().